Packy Hit New Yorker When and Where He Pleased, but the Latter Intended to Stay and Did.

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

(Special to The Evening World.)
BOSTON, Jan. 15.—Packy McFarland hit Bert Keyes about a million and a half times in twelve rounds here last night and failed to put him out.

Perhaps McFarland doesn't pack that wonderful punch that we have been hearing so much about. Perhaps Keyes was so awkward, as Packy explained afterward, that he couldn't get a chance to land his blows squarely. It is hard to look at Packy when he is in the ring. He looks like a bird dog in every second of the fight. He kept right after Keyes, dabbling and tapping and confusing with a continual massage of feathery punches.

In persistence he was a battling Nelson. Keyes didn't have a chance to get any stage. McFarland outclassed him entirely as a boxer, and Bert fanned the air about a yard away from Packy whenever he let fly his wild swings. Of course, Keyes did land a few punches, and on these rare occasions he was a little more than a bird dog. But they never had a chance to bowl very long. McFarland, whenever he was stung at all, came back with a rush that carried Keyes off his feet, bewildering him with a rapid fire of jolts and slaps and jabs.

Keyes There to Stay.
This Chicago boy can box. He is as fast as a dancing master on his feet. He has a left hand that drops into every opening. But there is not a sting in it. Or, if there is, he doesn't show the sting last night. He has nice judgment of distance, which enabled him to avoid Keyes's swings without an effort.

It was evident after a round or so that Keyes was in the ring to "stay." He was on the defensive. The fight was held under straight rules, the boys protecting themselves at all times. Keyes clinched continually, holding on until the referee was forced to pry the boys apart. After a couple of rounds Keyes began catching a sort of strange hold on McFarland's neck with the crook of his elbow. He would wrestle and throw his weight on McFarland, jerking and hauling him about. Packy never protested, but as soon as he could get clear he invariably dived in again, only to find himself in another clinch.

Best on Defensive.
Keyes didn't do much fighting himself. He was on the defensive. McFarland's glove was in his face so much of the time that he must have had a habit of doubling up awkwardly and getting away from the punches, and Packy, being unable to get a fair crack at him, stuck out his long left arm and tried to push the tow head around into a position where it would be good for a target.

As a "stayer" Keyes was a success. In the eighth round he began to show signs of wear. His left eye was puffed a little, and his face was red from the punching and jabbing. His arm was tired. Once in a clinch he caught Packy's glove in his teeth and held on. McFarland yelled to the referee, "Look there! He's biting my fingers! A laugh came from the Keyes corner. "Aw, he's only kidding!" yelled a second. "Sure, I'm only kidding," said Keyes. McFarland seemed to think differently. The gloves aren't very thick over the finger tips.

At the end of the tenth round Keyes kept on after the bell, which made it look very much like a real fight for a moment. In the eleventh round, both looked tired, backed through the ropes.

N. Y. A. C. RE-ELECTS PRESIDENT KUKHLE

IN one of the heaviest vote casting contests ever held at the New York Athletic Club George W. Kukhale was re-elected President of the club, defeating James H. Haslin by 226 votes. The polls opened at 8 o'clock and closed at midnight.

It was the most spirited election in the history of the club. All the metropolitan district members were in hand and out of town members dined here in order to be present, and when the polls closed the clubhouse was well filled.

"Jerry" Mahoney had a walkover for captain, there being no opposition. Those elected were President, George W. Kukhale; Vice-President, H. K. S. Williams; Treasurer, Charles L. Burnham; Secretary, Martin S. Paine; Captain, J. T. Mahoney.

SHARKEY A. C. STAG TO-NIGHT

The Sharkey A. C. has an excellent card of bouts arranged for its regular stag which will be held in its clubhouse at Columbus avenue and sixty-fifth street, to-night. In the main bout Jack Goodman, the clever local light-weight, will meet Jimmie O'Brien.

PACKY IS A GREAT FIGHTER—KEYES.

"McFarland is a great fighter, and I wish him luck. He beat me fairly, and I am not offering any excuse for my defeat. I was in good shape but Packy was too clever and fast for me. Every time I thought I had him measured for a good stiff blow he would jab me in the face. It would like to get on a return match with him, for I think I can give him a much harder battle if we meet again."

In his endeavor to get out of range of those teasing little McFarland jabs, Packy reached out a long arm and pulled him back again. McFarland tapped and tapped. Keyes, doubled up into a knot, suddenly straightened with a left and a right swing that caught Packy on the jaw, but only served to make him jab more busily than before. Keyes was gasping and arm-weary at the end. The twelfth round was better. Keyes started by missing three vicious swings by a yard, while McFarland danced away. Then Packy got very busy again, sending in his tape so fast that Keyes got all tangled up and fell through the ropes. He was in a good punch. The referee pulled Keyes back into the ring and McFarland went after him. Again Keyes backed through the ropes to get out of range. The last bell rang. Smiling, Keyes waited a second and then let go a swinging right swing. But McFarland was on his way. The swing missed.

Mac Is Aggressive.
It was all McFarland from start to finish. But although he showed himself to be one of the cleverest little boxers in the ring, and a perpetual motion machine for the referee, he didn't look like the man to whip Tommy Murphy in a short bout. In a long distance he would be a dangerous foe for any one to tackle. He seems able to fight fast that teasing style of his all night long.

The Army Athletic and Social Association, where the fight was held, was the old Catorama building, the best boxing arena in the country. It is an ideal place for bouts. The club is being fitted up with billiard rooms, both squash courts, and all of the things that a fine athletic club needs in its business.

Willie Horne and Cutler, the New Englander, will not race any of the horses here this season, but instead intend to make a trip to England, where he expects to start some of his jumpers in the big steeplechase events over there. Mr. Thomas has not sent in an entry for the Beacon, introductory or Independence steeplechase race, which has been incorporated in his two-year-old out of stakes for the coming season.

SHADOW BATTING BUG WADDELL'S LATEST

Quaker Pitcher's Ideas or Coaching Are at Least Novel.

BY BOZEMAN BULGER.
YOU may now prepare yourself for everything predicted in the horoscope for George Edward Waddell, known to his classmates as "Rube," is going to coach the baseball team of the Catholic College at Mobile, Ala.

Rube is to be no ordinary coach. Far be it from him to follow in the footsteps of our pioneer disciples of the national pastime. His first announcement, and one of importance, is that he is to introduce shadow batting.

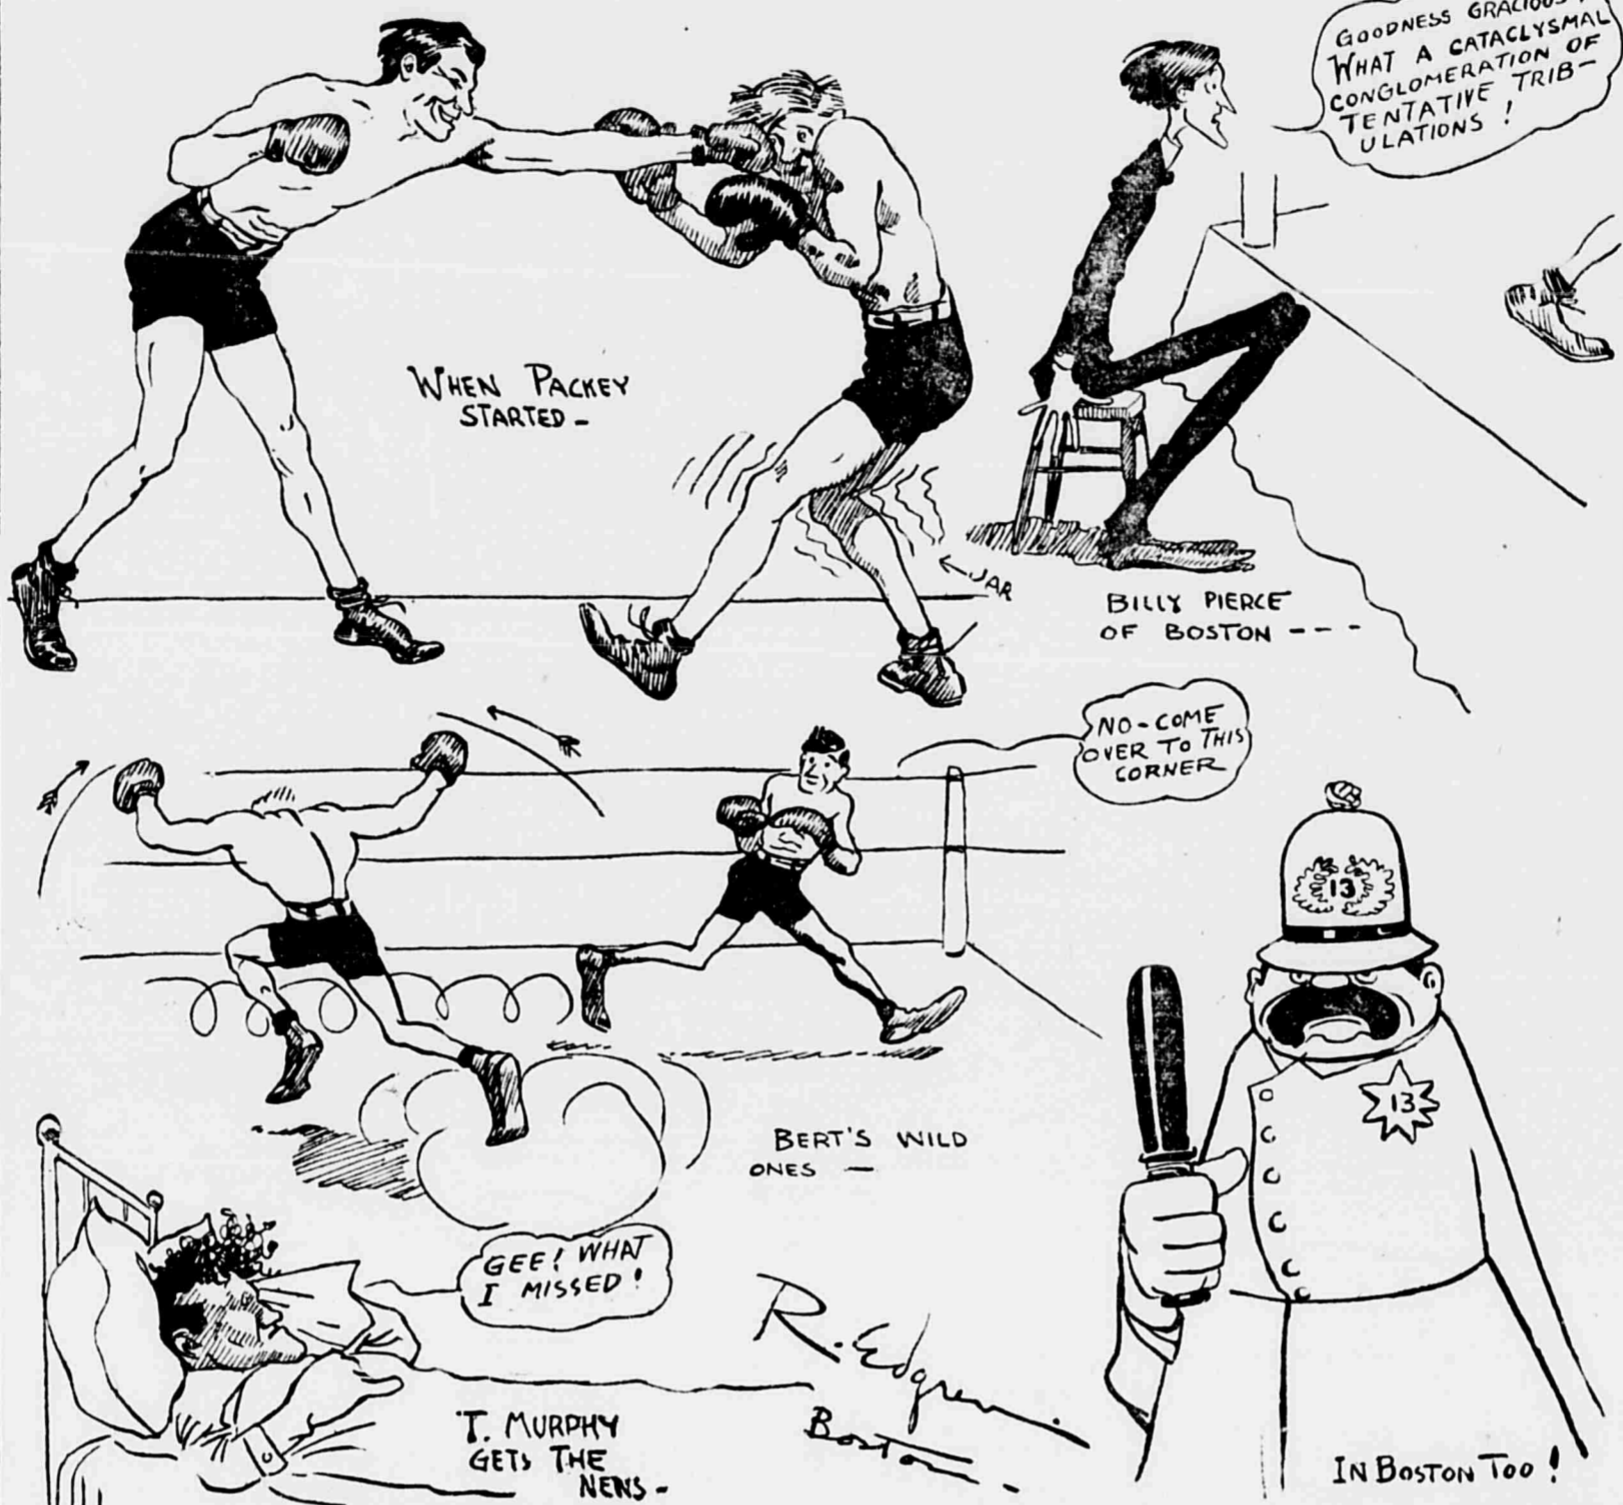

The shadow batting consists of a player standing around an imaginary plate for twenty minutes every day and striking at mythical balls which he knocks over the fence, through the shortstop's legs, or sends them flying over second, according to his fancy. In fact, Rube got an enthusiastic response to his scheme. He was not warded him as a shadow bat, and a few other pitchers who couldn't bat the ground with their hats could lead the league by the shadow route.

KEYES DECISIVELY BEAT M'FARLAND MAY NOW FIGHT NELSON

SIDELIGHTS ON KEYES-M'FARLAND FIGHT

Prospects Are That California Promoters Will Bid for Battle Between Packey and the Battling Dane.

BY JOHN POLLOCK.

IT looks now as if Packy McFarland, Chicago fighter, and Battling Nelson will be the pugilists who will come together in a fight in California for the lightweight championship title which has been relinquished by Joe Gans since his retirement from the ring. With Jimmy Britt practically out of the game, and Nelson fighting in good form again, the indications are that one of the right promoters of California will shortly offer them a large enough inducement to battle for the title.

McFarland should fight Nelson if he will only for twenty rounds, as Harry Gilmore, manager of McFarland, has already indicated. He has a few more stances will he permit Packy to box any one over that distance.

Jim Donovan and Lewis to Battle.
A match was practically arranged last night between Jim Donovan, the English middleweight and boxing instructor, and the Sharkey A. C. and Willie Lewis, the local pugilist who is now in the ring. Billy Pierce, manager of the Sharkey A. C., and Donovan, manager of Lewis, a local pugilist, and he accepted it immediately. As Donovan is anxious to meet Lewis, the contest will probably be clinched today.

Nolan to Manage Nelson Again.
Billy Nolan and Battling Nelson have been made up, and in the future "Boss" Billy will again manage the Dane. The fight will be in excellent shape for the contest, he having worked hard and long for the last few days for the battle. Glover ought to give Fitzgerald a hard battle, as he has been improving himself.

Glover Leaves for Battleground.
Billy Glover, the crack Boston fighter, left for Longmeadow, Mass., today, where he will meet Willie Fitzgerald in a ten-round bout to-morrow night. Billy is in excellent shape for the contest, he having worked hard and long for the last few days for the battle. Glover ought to give Fitzgerald a hard battle, as he has been improving himself.

Sullivan and Thomas Next Big Fight.
The next important fight to be decided will be the ten-round bout between Jack "Two" Sullivan, the New England pugilist, and Thomas, the California boxer, who has been known so heavy that he is now fighting in the heavyweight class. Both men are in excellent shape, and the contest will be an interesting one.

O'Toole and Hayes Matched.
All details for the six-round bout between George O'Toole, of Chicago, and Tommy Hayes, of Boston, have been arranged. They will come together at the next show of the National Athletic Club, on Saturday night. Hayes has been trying for some time to get on a match with O'Toole, and he has been successful in the opinion that he could beat him. The lads should put up a great fight.

Russell and Fitzgerald Matched.
Frank Russell, of White Plains, and "Fighting" Fitz, who engaged in a rough and tumble fight in the street last week, are to meet in a six-round bout before the Beaver A. C. last night. No decision was rendered, but Walcott showed superiority in every round, except the fourth. Both fighters seemed to lack steam and the mill was disappointing.
